Congratulations: Tania Johnston One of Construction's Most Influential People in 2025

ECAM congratulates Tania Johnston, Chief Executive Officer of the Mechanical Contractors Association of Canada, on being named one of construction's "Most Influential People" of 2025 by SiteNews.

As the first woman to lead MCAC in its more than 100-year history, Tania has made significant contributions to the industry. Her leadership has been instrumental in advancing workforce development, middle management training, and the national student chapter program. Her advocacy for mental health and support for women in the skilled trades have helped foster a more inclusive and resilient industry. We applaud Tania's leadership and her ongoing impact across the industry.

November 2024, ECAM signed a Memorandum of Understanding with the Mechanical Contractors Association of Canada (MCAC) to explore the formation of a National Dual Trade Association. ECAM recognizes the strong leadership of MCAC and looks forward to realizing the benefits of this collaborative initiative under the guidance of Tania Johnston.
